

Angular / Web Application Developer

Job Description – RevolutionEHR has an immediate opening for an experienced Web Application Developer for its SaaS application in the healthcare space. As an integral part of the development team for an early stage growth company, you will be responsible for all aspects of the software life cycle – from requirements through testing, deployment, and support.

The need to take on a variety of projects and phases within projects is an important attribute of the job. We are looking for an individual with a wide breadth of understanding and experience with standard web applications.

Company / Product - RevolutionEHR is a growth stage, cutting-edge software-company providing a cloud based Electronic Health Record and practice management solution for optometry. With over 4300 doctors and 18,000 users on the system, we are servicing customers in all 50 states and Canada. Our application is the leading cloud-based health record solution for optometry.

Work environment - Our development team embraces a distributed, virtual work environment. As such, you will need to be highly independent, detail-oriented, and self-motivated. You will be required to work out of your home and will need to travel infrequently to Madison, WI for meetings.

Experience - We are looking for software developers with experience in creating production quality software applications, in a team environment, for a product that is marketed to a broad set of customers. Your background should include some of the following skills:

Programming Skills

- Angular
- HTML(5)/Javascript/AJAX
- XML / JSON

Environments/Tools/Libraries

- Javascript – jQuery, Require, Bootstrap, Angular
- MySQL
- Tomcat
- Linux/Unix/Windows
- Node/Grunt/Gulp/Ant
- Git/Jira

General Skills

- Basic user interface design
- General SQL skills
- Troubleshooting
